No One Accepts Responsibility for Return

Ms. Edwards Gets Kids Back

By SID LEAVITT
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — Only hours after criminal abandonment charges against her were dismissed, Laura Edwards was given custody again of the three young children whom she left in a local welfare office with only a note, it was learned today.

However, neither officials in Ulster County or in Hudson County, N.J., would say that they had authorized the return of Mrs. Edwards' children to her.

According to the New Jersey Division of Youth and Family Services, caseworkers there were given the impression that Ulster County officials released the children Wednesday in Mrs. Edwards' custody.

According to Bernhardt S. Kramer, commissioner of the Ulster County Social Services Department, the children were released to the New Jersey officials for them to decide on custody.

Regardless of how the custody was authorized, the children are at home with Mrs. Edwards in Jersey City, N.J., under supervision of welfare officials there, caseworker Virginia C.

Mastondrea told the Freeman.

The outcome was "distressing" to E. Michael Kavanagh, assistant Ulster County district attorney, who hinted strongly that giving the children back to Mrs. Edwards wasn't what the grand jury had in mind Tuesday when they dismissed felony charges against her.

A criminal abandonment conviction could have sent Mrs. Edwards to state prison for up to four years.

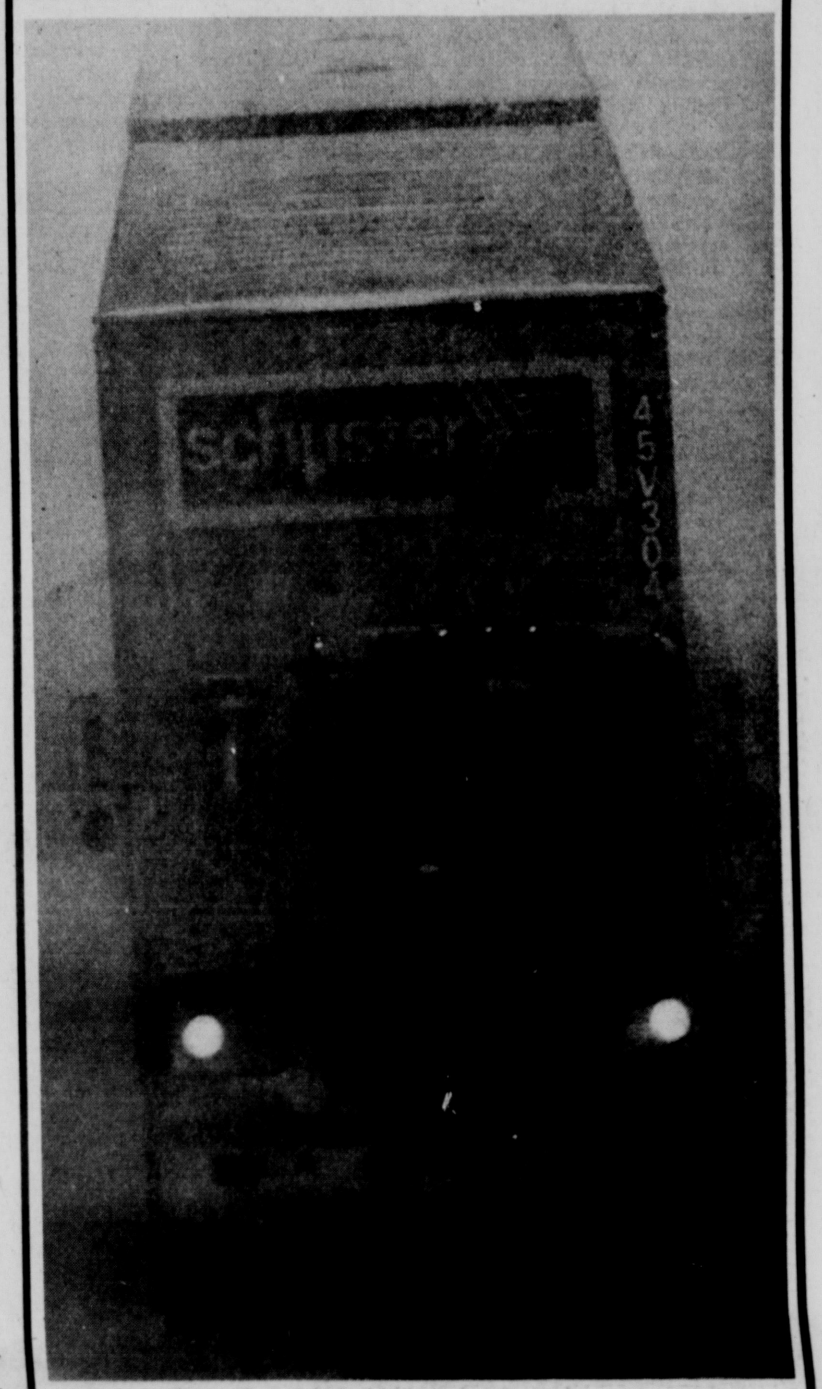

"Although (custody) isn't a question that a grand jury has jurisdiction over, I think it is fair to say that the jurors had a legitimate concern about her capacity to take care of the children," Kavanagh said.

Myra DuBois, Ulster County child welfare supervisor, said social services officials accompanied the children and Mrs. Edwards back to Jersey City Wednesday after the social services department decided to withdraw a custody petition from local family court.

According to Kramer, the decision was to put the children in custody of the New Jersey welfare division. From an economic, visitation and human point of view, "we felt that" (See EDWARDS, page 5)

BAD ROADS

This truck on the Thruway drives on through today's snow, its lights on even though it's mid-morning. The snow made the county's roads slick, with about a dozen minor accidents reported. Many of the schools in the area not closed in observance of Sojourner Truth Day sent their students home early. Weather conditions were forecast to get worse before they got better. The U.S. Weather Service predicted the snow would change to sleet before it became rain.

Richter Admits He Made Errors

By LYNN MULVANEY
Freeman staff

WHITE PLAINS — Accused of lying to the State Commission on Judicial Conduct, Kingston City Judge Hubert A. Richter admitted under cross examination Thursday that his previous testimony before the commission was wrong on several counts.

Testifying at his judicial misconduct trial here, the judge said he erred in saying that three defendants were without handcuffs the day they were brought to his private law office for sentencing.

"My recollection is different now, I was wrong," Richter told the court. Sheriff deputies testified earlier that the three defendants, including Nicholas Malanos, were handcuffed together.

The commission's case charges Richter with egging Malanos on toward a physical confrontation.

Under cross examination by commission counsel Frank Finnerty, Richter also admitted he was in error when he sentenced three men without a lawyer.

"I went blank. I was stupid on this. I had a blind spot....," he explained, visibly shaken by his own statement.

Returning the stand composed, after a brief recess, Richter also admitted he neglected to set bail for a defendant named John Schiskie who, according to testimony, became abusive in city court.

But Richter's admissions may have been offset by the parade of Ulster County lawyers, policemen and others who made the trip to White Plains Court House to give the judge a vote of confidence. Nine men, including Police Kingston Police Chief Julius Glassman and Kingston criminal lawyer Frank Martocci took the stand to testify to Richter's integrity.

Under cross examination the judge told the court he "did not intend to hit Schiskie. Wednesday Richter testified he hit the defendant's handcuffs after Schiskie attempted to spit at him three times and made a grab for him. By raising the back of his hand, he said, he wanted to show his feeling of contempt for what Schiskie did.

Widow Asks $15 Million

Hospital Malpractice Suit Reaches Court

KINGSTON — A New Jersey woman's $15 million malpractice lawsuit against Kingston Hospital and two local doctors for the 1973 death of her husband recessed Thursday night after a long day of testimony from an Albany specialist.

Mrs. Eva M. Saulters is suing the hospital, Dr. Edmund Reppert and Dr. Walter Levy for what she claims was the death of her 29-year-old husband Robert Saulters of blood poisoning due to medical malpractice.

Supreme Court Justice John Froman heard testimony Thursday from Dr. Harvey Barnard of Albany Medical Center, who maintained after reviewing the case that the hospital and the physicians involved in Saulters' care had acted within the bounds of regular medical procedure in treating the patient.

Attorneys for the defendants were reluctant to discuss any details of the case today, but Robert Marvin, a Rhinebeck lawyer handling the hospital and Dr. Reppert's defense, said this morning that Saulters died of "many complications."

The reason the man was first hospitalized was not available this morning.

Mrs. Saulters' case is being handled by Herman Glazer, a nationally known malpractice attorney with the firm of Glazer and Blitz in New York City.

Joseph Rende of White Plains is representing Dr. Levy, a family practice physician in Kingston.

Dumping at Ulster Too Expensive

City Forced to Reopen Landfill

By ROB BORSELLINO
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — Garbage dumping at Kingston Point, banned since last September, will resume next month and continue for at least five months, according to the city's Board of Public Works (BPW).

Citing "no alternative but to reopen the Kingston Point Sanitary Landfill," BPW Administrative Assistant Woodrow Diehl says the dumping will resume on April 20 when the city's dumping agreement with the Town of Ulster expires.

The city has been using the Ulster landfill free of charge since September 1976 but Diehl says Ulster officials want $30,000 to extend the agreement for six months. He also noted that while the dumping at Ulster is free, the city has spent about $40,000 for salaries, machinery and cover at the landfill since the September agreement.

The re-opening of Kingston Point, a tidal wetland, is expected to further jeopardize plans to reclaim that area for recreational purposes. The city's plan is to build a garbage transfer station and have the refuse trucked out of the local area, but getting funding for the transfer station has been a problem.

In January the U.S. Department of Commerce denied the city's application for $367,000 to build the station.

The Common Council then filed an application with the State Department of Environmental Conservation hoping to get at least some of the needed money.

Diehl said today the BPW hopes some word from the state will be forthcoming by mid-April so the city can advertise for bids for the transfer station construction, expected to take 90 to 120 days. The station will be located off Route 32, south of the Golden Hill area.

Although he was not available for comment this morning, Mayor Francis R. Koenig has said previously the city will have to borrow the money if the state does not come through with funds.

County Work Study by State Set

KINGSTON — What both sides agree will be an impartial look into county employee work situations will begin April 26 when the N.Y. Civil Service Commission begins an in depth job study of Ulster County.

Previous private studies, paid for by the county, have always been rejected either by the legislators or the Civil Service Employees Association which represents the 1,200 government workers.

The last such analysis of job titles, classifications and actual work conditions was completed in mid-1976 by a now defunct consulting firm, Kingsley and Associate, at a cost of $17,500. CSEA flatly refused to accept those findings.

The state commission study will be free.

"It's my feeling that this couldn't be any more impartial," said legislative Chairman Ernest Gardner, R-Dist. 8, this morning.

"Independent studies haven't proven to be what they should have been in the past and as long as it's of no cost to the county, I'm glad to have it done."

CSEA President Thomas Phillips agreed a "neutral third party" was what the county needed to straighten out what he sees as a number of improper practices currently existing within departments.

"We have some working out of title, people working without job specifications... hopefully when this study is completed none of these situations will exist," said Phillips.

The state is coming into the county at the request of the local civil service commission, which asked for the survey in late October.

A proposed timetable for the survey lists April 26 as the date for distribution of questionnaires to department heads, the month of June for audits of selected positions in the county, July 25-29 for department head appeals to any preliminary recommendations, August 15-19 for employee appeals of classifications, and final recommendations for the mandatory reclassification positions to be forwarded to the local commission on Sept. 1.

The last Civil Service survey was conducted by the state in 1971. It encompassed positions in towns, villages, school districts and the Ellenville Library.

The agencies earmarked for priority review this year are the department of social services, county clerk's office, tax services and mental health.

A meeting between the state civil service commission and CSEA representatives to lay the groundwork for the survey is scheduled for Wednesday.

Ulster County Is Celebrating Sojourner Truth Day Today

Inge Hardison's sculpture of Sojourner Truth.

KINGSTON — In keeping with a local tradition of the past several years, Ulster County today celebrates the memory of Sojourner Truth, the one-time slave who became one of America's most prominent abolitionists and human rights activists during the 19th Century.

Originally named Belle, Sojourner was born in Hurley in the late 1790's and was sold on the auction block in Kingston several times by the age of 12. Her owners included a Dutch family in Hurley, a Kingston farmer, a Rondout tavern owner and a New Paltz farmer.

She was freed under the New York State Emancipation Act of 1827 and in her mid-40's she joined the anti-slavery movement and went on to become an outstanding orator championing the abolition of slavery, the rights of women, prison reform and better working conditions.

When she chose the name Sojourner Truth, she explained her choice thus: Sojourner. "Because I was to travel up and down the land," and Truth. "Because I was declare the truth unto people." She died in Michigan in 1883.

World in Brief

St. Patrick's Day Was Daley Tribute

Thursday, as everyone knows, was St. Patrick's Day and in Chicago 70,000 people march down State Street, turning the annual parade into an unabashed tribute to the late Mayor Richard Daley. For 21 years Daley, who died last December, had rapped a shillelagh three times on the pavement at the corner of State and Lake Streets to signal the start of Chicago's St. Patrick's Day Parade.

Elsewhere, it was a familiar story across the nation: "On St. Paddy's Day, everyone is Irish."

Boyle Set Free Pending New Trial

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Former United Mine Workers' President W. A. "Tony" Boyle, 75, was freed from Western Penitentiary Thursday, pending a retrial on charges of murdering his union rival Joseph Jablonski, along with his wife and daughter. The Pennsylvania Supreme Court Jan. 28 ordered Boyle retried because Delaware County Court Judge Francis Catania had refused to allow testimony the defense contended would show a crucial prosecution witness had a reason for wanting Jablonski dead.

Wendy Yoshimura Granted Bail

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Alameda County Superior Court Judge Martin Pulich Thursday set bail at $50,000 for Wendy Yoshimura, after sentencing her to state prison for a term of one to 15 years on a conspiracy charge and up to five years on each of two charges of possession of bomb materials and an automatic weapon. The terms will run concurrently, and — under a law taking effect on July 1 — she could be released at any time between 16 months and three years. (More on page 14)

Carter at Home After 2-Day Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is back in Washington, after a two-day trip to Clinton, Mass., Charleston, W.Va., and New York City. Today he plans to sign a bill banning the importation of chrome from Rhodesia, to bring the United States into compliance with a United Nations' economic sanctions against the south African country.

Carter spoke at the United Nations Thursday night, and in the course of his speech he said, "No member of the United Nations can claim that mistreatment of its citizens is solely its own business."

A passenger, David P. Brennan, 25, of Wallkill, was treated at Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie for a sprained neck and contusions.

Police said Ms. Simard was driving west on the roadway at about 1:25 a.m. when the car got caught in the right shoulder, hit a utility pole and flipped over, ejecting her from the vehicle.

Figures compiled by the department's Office of Biostatistics showed that the homicide rate was 10.5 per 100,000 population, up 1 per cent. The suicide rate was 9.6 per 100,000.

In the same period, the national murder rate was 8.3 and there were 11.8 suicides per 100,000.

Jimmy Pays His Own Tab

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — President Carter rejected an offer from one of America's richest men and paid for his own cheeseburger with lettuce, tomato and mayonnaise, "a pickle on the side" and french fries.

A waitress in the West Virginia Capitol cafeteria Thursday took the tray which Carter had been carrying and seated him with Gov. Jay Rockefeller and Rockefeller's wife, Sharon.

The governor offered to pick up the tab for the meal but Carter declined.

Carter was in Charleston for an energy round-table and talks with local leaders.

JDL—Muslims... Rhetoric Escalates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Police are girding for a threatened Sunday showdown between the revenge-bent Jewish Defense League and the Hanafi Muslims — the sect which for two days last week held 134 hostages, most of them at the B'nai B'rith headquarters.

The Hanafis and the JDL traded insults Thursday at news conferences here and in New York. JDL leader Meir Kahane — who just completed a year in prison for violating probation on a terrorism conviction — said the militant Jewish organization will march to the Hanafi stronghold in northwest Washington Sunday and demand an apology.

"I'd like to see if they'll come out so we can beat the crap out of them," Kahane added.

Begum Khadija Khaalif, wife of Hanafi leader Hamaas Abdul Khaalif, fired back that the JDL "and all Zionist Jews and their allies ... will write their epitaph in self destruction and the blood of their people" — a statement labeled "hogwash" by a JDL spokesman in Washington.

As the rhetoric escalated, police spokesman Bill Jepsen confirmed plans were under way to deal with the demonstration.

"I would imagine you could expect that the force that is there (at the Hanafi headquarters) now will be retained through the period, but that if additional manpower is needed it would be summoned," he said.

"But beyond that we would not be in a position to specify what our strategy will be."

Mrs. Khaalif, speaking for her husband who is barred from making public statements while on personal recognition for his role in the hostage-taking, summoned reporters to the Hanafi headquarters to tell them the Muslims had received a threatening telephone call and telegram from Kahane.

"We ... sincerely warn all Zionist Jews and their allies that we are not alone and not to be misguided by what they think they see," she said.

At his news conference, Kahane said, "We're going to their home to see if their lunatic leader and all other antisemites, that are so tough at dealing with women and children, how they can deal with us."

Hamaas Abdul Khaalif, the Hanafi leader, held more than 100 hostages, most of them Jews, in the B'nai B'rith building for most of two days last week. He demanded, unsuccessfully, that authorities send him six rival Black Muslims convicted of killing Hanafis in 1973.

Gene Research Ban Held Not the Answer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The director of the National Institutes of Health says halting gene research in the United States would have little practical effect because it is certain to continue in the rest of the world.

Dr. Donald Fredrickson told a House subcommittee Thursday the United States should allow the research to continue under stringent safeguards while working up a series of uniform regulations to govern the so-called recombinant DNA.

Ideally, he said, the same regulations and safety standards should apply on a uniform basis to the research worldwide.

Dioxyribonucleic Acid, known as DNA, is the carrier of genetic material that determines hereditary characteristics of all known cells. In recent years, scientific techniques have been developed to permit transplantation of DNA from one organism into a completely unrelated species — or recombining the DNA.

The research is highly controversial, since it involves the basic building blocks of life itself and could create monstrousities if it goes astray. It also could lead to enormous genetic benefits.

"Banning this research or halting it will not answer the very questions we need to know," Fredrickson told the subcommittee.

He said a ban or moratorium on recombinant DNA research would be ineffective because the research "will clearly continue in many sections of the world" regardless of the action taken in the United States.

Recombinant DNA research is being conducted in a number of countries, Fredrickson said, including Canada, the United Kingdom, Scandinavian countries, Eastern Europe, the Soviet Union and Japan.

"As a general matter," he said, the research is not as advanced in the Eastern bloc countries including the Soviet Union as it is in the western world.

Although "we cannot say there is no risk of contamination" to the United States from research in other parts of the world, Fredrickson said he knows of no ongoing research which poses any threat or potential danger.

"I think it's essential for the protection of all of us on this globe that there be uniformity" worldwide, Fredrickson said.

He said NIH recommends that all facilities conducting the research be licensed and individual projects be registered.

Fast Breeder Reactor Called 'Potential Risk'

Atomic Energy Gets Low Carter Marks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has labeled the nuclear fast breeder reactor a "potential security risk." It was his strongest post-election statement on the controversial program.

Elated critics of the breeder say they believe the President's position indicates he may cancel a commercial-scale demonstration of the reactor. But the congressman to whom Carter made the comments in a letter says there is no such firm indication.

Rep. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, made Carter's letter public Thursday. It expressed serious reservations about the breeder program and said the administration will give atomic energy a lower priority than it enjoyed under past presidents.

Previously, nuclear power ranked as the most important U.S. energy source and the breeder — a new type reactor that would produce more fuel than it consumed — was viewed as one of three great hopes for providing energy in the 21st Century.

Critics have attacked the breeder for its high cost and because it would produce plutonium that might contribute to the spread of atomic weapons.

A member of Harkin's staff said the letter indicates Carter shares concerns about the breeder's production of plutonium, one of the deadliest substances on earth and the material from which the hydrogen bomb is made.

Responding to a written request from 15 members of Congress for cancellation of a commercial-scale breeder demonstration at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Carter noted he has withdrawn Gerald Ford's request for $85 million for the Tennessee project next year, pending a review.

"This administration generally considers nuclear power a lower priority energy source, and views the (Liquid Metal Fast Breeder Reactor) as a potential security risk," Carter said.

He said there would be "serious reevaluation" before any future funding is recommended.

Opponents say the breeder's production of plutonium would sharply increase the risk nonnuclear nations or terrorist groups might get the material to build bombs. In addition, they say, plutonium itself is so dangerous it could be stolen and used as a terrorist weapon.

Unhealthy Situation in Saugerties Development

Meadow Park Sewer Woes 'Bad News'

SAUGERTIES — Street and sewer problems in the Meadow Park housing development have helped to stir renewed interest in village planning and zoning.

Park builders requested village acceptance of the development. The village board delayed action until receipt of an approved, detailed map of park land. Village engineers, trustees felt, should evaluate street and sewage maintenance needs before acceptance.

Trustee Robert Lehmann noted that, in spite of "some handsome homes" in Meadow Park, his impression is "It's a sorry looking place." He labeled the sewer problem in the development "bad news."

Open manholes with portable covers, he said, were serious hazards, especially after snowfalls, to youngsters cutting through the property to the high school. Added Lehmann, "It's an unhealthy, smelly situation, and the builders should be put on notice to secure the manhole covers."

There have also been complaints from some residents that these and similar problems might have been avoided with proper planning. They noted that homes contracted in the park had never been properly presented to the planning board before construction began.

The planning board had been ignored in the matter by a previous administration, it was charged, and the park allowed without proper regulation.

Some residents called for stricter attention to the village zoning ordinance, one of the first adopted in Ulster County. They charged that, since it was passed in 1956, mayors and trustees over the years have disregarded it and made no move to give it added teeth through subdivision regulations.

They want the village board to subject the 20-year-old ordinance to serious scrutiny and enforce it with more than the lip service it has been given in the past. The importance of planning and zoning has been emphasized by the Meadow Park problems, they said, and by the fact that recent decisions of the Zoning Appeals Board have been challenged for the first time. Such matters as approving garages and restaurants in residential areas should not have to be questioned after the fact, they insisted.

With general elections over for another two years, and a new mayor in office, the village board is expected to take a new look at local planning and zoning with an eye to updating and enforcing regulations.

The new mayor and trustees, after taking office April 1, will also be considering other matters, among them:

- Working cooperatively with town government to improve facilities for youth interrogation by police. Testimony of young people must be taken in state approved facilities, and plans call for combined use by town and village of a cleared area in the local courtroom with an entrance other than through the police station or past uniformed officers. A youth officer will also be named.

- Installation of new parking meters throughout the village. The 133 meters now in use are 10 years old and very few are operating correctly. A study is also in process to improve parking on all village streets and in the municipal lot.

- A reassessment of street cleaning problems in the village, which some board members recognize as "the biggest gripe" of local residents. Some feel the problem calls for increased expenditures for better clean-up.

- Preparation of the village budget for the new fiscal year. Budget figures must be presented by April 15.

Direct Questions, But Answers...

Guv Replies Like True Politico

By William Stevens

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — There have been some reports that it is difficult to get a direct answer from Gov. Hugh Carey.

The following is from the official transcript of a news conference this week. You be the judge.

Question: "Governor, are you still seeking a permanent director for the (state) Energy Office?"

Governor Carey: "Well, this is part of the comprehensive plan which doesn't really confine itself to New York State. I'm working as chairman of the Conference of Northeast Governors. We're preparing legislation for the Northeast and Middle Atlantic states which we want to dovetail with the President's new federal energy policy, and I have been heading up the program among the governors with the committee on the Northeast Energy and Economic Development Bill as the centerpiece of that program. So, frankly, I've been acting, in addition to being governor, as the energy coordinator for the Northeast Region closely cooperating with the federal officials and, as we do that, I'm in contact with many persons and from those persons with whom I am in contact, I believe we'll have a new direction and good leadership in the Energy Office of New York State."

Question: "But are we going to get a permanent director, governor?"

Governor Carey: "Well, everyone in this administration, when acting, is permanent whenever the person is doing a good job. Mr. (Jeffrey) Cohen has been doing a very good job, so we're not suffering from the loss of a full-time director, because he is a full-time director."

Question: "Well, a few weeks ago you said the search was still on and you were trying to find the right person. Does that mean the search is off and you're keeping Mr. Cohen?"

Governor Carey: "No, the search is on because I certainly want to build a new kind of energy system in the state so that, you know, there's plenty of work for all the people involved at this time."

"The kind of system of energy production that we are talking about is one that will build on our availability of hydro through PASNY (the state Power Authority), build on our in-place nuclear systems, build in solar energy research, work in the direction of waste disposal as a source of energy. All these matters, frankly, are new beginnings for the state and during this period, we are all working as a team and the team has ample leadership."

Senate House Trustees Named

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Hugh Carey today announced the appointment of three persons as unsalaried trustees of the Senate House Association, which helps oversee the first home of the state Senate in Kingston, where the Senate first convened Sept. 10, 1777.

Appointed, subject to Senate confirmation, were: •James Betts, of Kingston, a retired insurance agency owner and former city treasurer and assessor, to succeed

Margaret Hanstein of Kingston, whose term expired.

•John Finch of Kingston, a public school principal, to succeed John Paul Remensnyder of Saugerties, whose term expired.

•Jeannine Ryan Tully of High Falls, a former teacher, to succeed Kenneth Hasbrouck of New Paltz, whose term expired.

Downtown Mart..Dollars Key

KINGSTON— Although several developers have expressed some interest in constructing the long-awaited Broadway East Shopping Center in downtown Kingston, Mayor Francis R. Koenig says there is "still the question of the bottom line."

The mayor says the matter is still at a point where no developer could construct the project at an economically feasible price. A 40,000 square foot shopping center, according to figures supplied by the mayor, would cost about $20 a square foot to construct, for a total construction cost of about $800,000. At nine per cent interest, if such a low rate could be realized, the developer would be paying about $72,000 a year on the loan.

With current rents at about $3 a square foot, the maximum return on the project would be about $120,000. Less the $72,000 in interest, the developer would have an income of $48,000 a year. Then taxes, in the amount of about $43,000, would have to be paid, leaving the developer with very little profit.

"The problem is that under New York State law there are limits as to what kind of tax breaks we can give a developer," explained the mayor. "That's one of the big reasons why this area of the country is losing business to the South."

Koenig said under a recent state law a municipality could give a 50 per cent tax break in the first year, a 45 per cent break in the second year and go on for 10 years until the full 100 per cent taxes are paid. That's something that's currently being looked into, he said.

Late last year Koenig attempted to have the project financed through the Ulster County Industrial Development Agency. However, that plan was rejected by the federal community development and planning office.

Saugerties: No Rx on BOCES

SAUGERTIES — Requests from parents of mentally handicapped youngsters to move their children from a mid-county BOCES training program to Saugerties classrooms drew a board of education response that the local school district "cannot handle the program."

Prime mover in the fight to keep trainable retarded children of Saugerties in hometown facilities has been Robert Mann. His 15-year-old daughter attends BOCES classes in Marbletown Elementary School. Mann feels that although she is "contracted out to BOCES," the legal responsibility for her education rests with the Saugerties district. He has drawn support from other local parents with the same problem.

Mann objects to a BOCES plan that would transfer his daughter and other youngsters like her from normal surroundings in Marbletown to what he calls "isolated and unacceptable facilities." Those would be in a once-abandoned Rosendale building with "a potential for disaster" for retarded children.

He argued at a recent Saugerties board meeting, "BOCES is in the position of defending the Rosendale location, but that position does not represent the interests of our children."

School board president, the Rev. John Needham, sympathized. "Every child under this district's care needs and gets the best possible education," he said.

But he felt "mainstreaming" the retarded youngsters involved into Saugerties schools was "impossible now because of financial and other reasons." Needham also had strong reservations that removing the children from their present program and the "supervision of skilled people" would be to do them a "diservice."

He said three board members and superintendent Daniel Lee, moved by Mann's concern, had personally visited the Rosendale center. "The building is not new," he said, "and no one ever pretended it was. But we discussed the program in all its aspects, and were impressed with director William LeDoux's concern for the program, his sincerity, and the problems he faces with the State Education Law."

While Needham was willing to grant the facilities "are not the best," he felt the program was good. "BOCES would move, if it could," he said, "but only centrally located county school districts can be used when BOCES doesn't have its own facilities."

Added Needham, "While we have enough Saugerties children for this 'special' class, and some available room, we do not have the ability to handle the program. We'll continue to go with BOCES on this."

Said a disappointed Mann, "You apparently agree with BOCES, even though their word has ended up meaning nothing in the past. What good is a good program if our kids are isolated from everybody, and must travel long distances?"

"You can't take a good program and stick it in a corner of the county and still say it's good. To isolate and make our children different, when they were different to begin with, is not my idea of how to educate a child."

But superintendent Lee felt more than financial problems were involved. Saugerties will have room space next year in elementary schools, but none in the secondary level. Linda Mann and other 12 to 15-year-old youngsters would be transferred from primary classes at Marbletown to Rosendale's intermediate group, he noted. He questioned the wisdom of moving older mentally handicapped children into a relationship with much younger children in low grades in Saugerties.

Lee also felt it was "better to build" the financially established, centrally located BOCES program instead of "pulling out and increasing costs elsewhere." Said the superintendent, "It took so long to build up the BOCES classes. We might be doing more harm by trying to go it alone."

Although the board felt compelled to deny Mann's request, Needham commended him "for the kind of pressure you are exerting." Said the board president, "Although we can do nothing now, sooner or later, that pressure will count."

Sexpots And Seals

The appearance on the Hollywood or television screens of actresses Brigitte Bardot and Yvette Mimieux has never been a hard thing to take.

They're two lovely women.

But we doubt if their filmland appearances could ever top what they're presently engaged in — on-the-spot protests in Canada against the annual slaughter of baby seals for their pelts.

If you've never witnessed this spectacle on television you may not grasp the horror of it. It is a scene that will surely turn one's stomach upside down and perhaps even sideways.

These young pups are just clubbed to death after they make their way up to the ice floes. And for what? Pelts, of all things. I'm sure milady (in most cases, I hope) would gladly forego this particular outer wrapping if she, too, could see this awful slaughter.

It was estimated earlier this week that at least 30,000 seals had been killed this year — by the end of the third day — and the "harvest" had two weeks to go.

We say hats off both to Miss Bardot, the former "sex kitten" and Miss Mimieux for their presence in Canada to lend their names and voices in protest against this annual frolic for the sealhunters.

Their presence on the slaughter grounds may not end this. And Lord knows what will. We can only hope something is done in the not too distant future to bring down the curtain once and for all on this degrading scene in the wilds of Canada.

Fire Department Was Big Help

Dear Editor:

I would like to publicly thank the Kingston Fire Department for their help on Friday evening, March 4. Upon arriving home, my husband and I opened our basement door and noticed about three to five inches of water on the floor, due to the heavy rain and the thawing.

Captain Argulivicz and Roland Purhamas responded almost immediately and spent over three hours pumping the water from our basement. It's really encouraging to know you have competent public servants on call any hour of the day or night to help out in time of crisis. The two gentlemen could not have been more sincere or nicer. My thanks to Cpt. Argulivicz and Mr. Purhamas and to the Kingston Fire Department for their help.

Last Letter On Sportsmen

Dear Editor:

I would like to comment on Mr. Frederick Faerber's letter commenting on my letter of Feb. 23.

Firstly: my views on the subject are very strong and lengthy, too lengthy in fact to go into here.

Secondly: my letter was on an article in the Freeman not an entire subject. My main complaint was the heralding of the Federated Sportsmen for changing a law, when in fact the law remains basically unchanged.

Thirdly: where and when does the Federation meet? If Mr. Faerber would call and let me know, I'm in the phone book under Kingston, I may be interested in attending and possibly discussing our views on this and other matters.

Fourthly: I do not wish to carry on a running discussion with Mr. Faerber in the Freeman so this will be my last letter on the subject.

Fact And Fiction at A Fire

Dear Editor:

I was one of the many victims of the Rosendale fire at the "Rosendale Gardens," as you put it, and I tell you, I am pretty downright disgusted at what was reported on radio and in your newspaper about it.

For one thing I would like to mention that it was William Gully of the Astoria that saved the lives of my mother and younger brother and the lives of the other persons that resided in the three story tenement house. And that it was his brother Bob Gully that kicked in the door of the Auchomody house and brought them to safety. And not the fast actions of the village police and fire departments as was reported on the radio.

And may I correct you by saying that wasn't seven families that had gotten wiped out by the blaze, but only five. There's really no need to stretch that part of the story out, it was bad enough.

Also, I send my utmost sorrow for Wayne Smith who had lacerated his hand while attempting to rescue a child and dog on the third floor of the building as you reported in your newspaper. Sorrow, not because he cut his hand, but because he cut his hand rescuing someone that wasn't even there. What I mean is, is that the third floor of the building wasn't even being occupied. And never has been occupied for as long as I can remember.

To tell you the truth, I think you guys are in the wrong business. Why don't you try writing fiction books, maybe you'll put Ellery Queen out of business, at least you'll give him a good run anyway.

Billy Gully, I love you, and I owe you one. Thanks for everything. And many thanks to the Red Cross and the Village Fire Department and all of the people who helped put clothes on our backs. It was and is very much appreciated.

Picketing Bill Raises Ugly Head

Dear Editor:

To Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr.:

It has been brought to my attention that the Common-Situs Picketing bill (HR 3500) has been brought out again and will be before you for voting in the near future. Your previous vote was "yes" on this highly inflationary bill, but I hope that you have seen the light by this time and will do your best to see that the public gets a break for a change. YOUR NO VOTE ON THIS MATTER IS IMPORTANT.

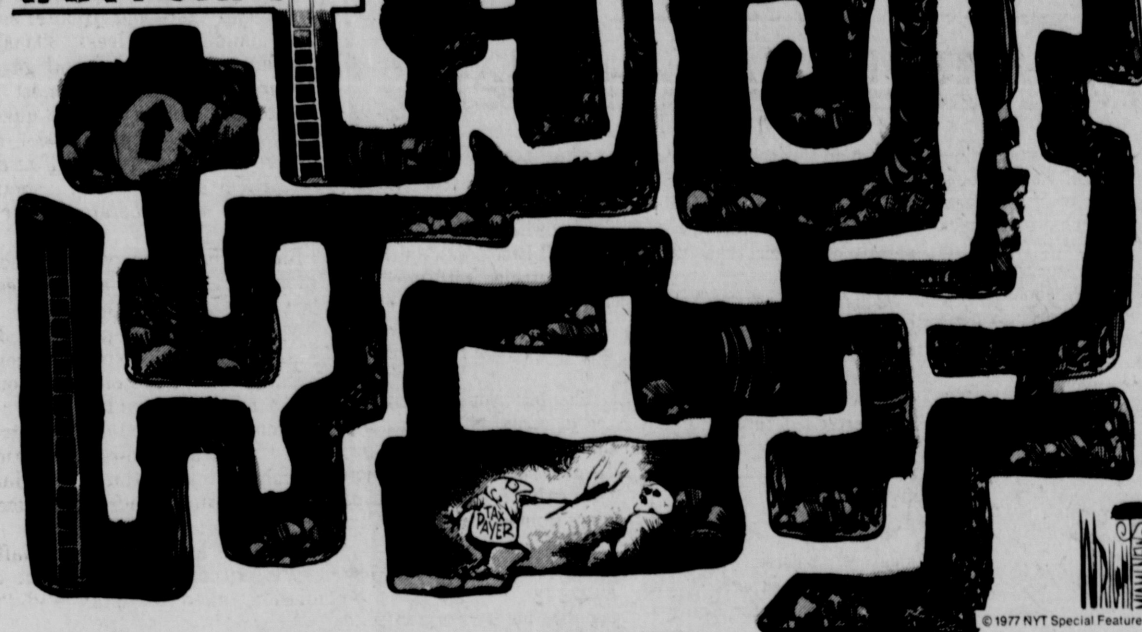

As you know, it was my privilege to be in the audience when you were the principal speaker at our annual Chamber of Commerce dinner, and I intended asking you about this had the floor been opened for questions. My letter writing proclivities concerning this BAD, BAD, legislation will be demonstrated again so that the public is aware of the increased costs and additional restrictions that building projects will face if the law permits this now illegal secondary boycott to become fact. You admit that Congress is held in low esteem by the majority of the public now. Don't compound it by voting for measures against the public's best interest.

I am looking forward to hearing your views on this.

ALL NEW SIMPLIFIED TAX FORM

Nicholas Von Hoffman

Terrorizing the Taxpayer

WASHINGTON - Hanafi Muslims aside, this is also the season for IRS terrorism. Come March every year the tax gangsters try to flood the mass media with stories about the terrible things that will happen to you if you don't pony up. They may have overreached themselves the other day when they had a judge sentence a weeping, wailing mother of five to four months in jail and another four years of suspended sentence because she owed $11,661 in taxes. Thus the 44-year-old Mrs. Virginia Wright of Washington, D.C. is doing a month in the slammer for each $2,900 in taxes she pleaded guilty to evading.

If millionaire tax evaders were sentenced on the same ratio of punishment to dollars owed they'd look like the mummified pharaoh Tutankhamen before they got out of the slammer. Rich evaders tend not to go to jail, however. In fact they tend not to have to pay all their taxes since they can usually go into the IRS terrorist offices, settle for paying seven cents on the dollar and get a good citizenship award. On the front page of The Wall Street Journal, they're speculating that GM may have evaded millions upon millions in taxes. If the alleged conspiracy is true - and in fairness to General Motors no proof of it has been made public - it would mean that dozens of executives would have to be involved in this putative conspiracy. Assuming for the sake of argument the conspiracy does exist, assuming some GM officials are indicted, brought to trial and convicted someday, what will their sentences be? At worst they will have to serve a little time on the weekends.

Why couldn't that be done with Mrs. Wright, who didn't report the $10,000 a year she was making as a practical nurse over a four-year period? Because people like Mrs. Wright pay the bulk of the taxes in the country and therefore must be kept in a state of abject terror.

The very modesty of her circumstances, her very lack of connections, clout or contacts made her the perfect person to clomp down on and stomp. Most people will read about Mrs. Wright's case and say to themselves, "That could be me. That's the kind of money I make. That's the kind of person I am, just a regular person with no muscle to call on, when they put the blocks to me."

Mrs. Wright was the perfect person to flay alive. She has all her five children living with her and her husband, a $19,000-a-year public high school teacher. The children are aged 7, 8, 13, 20 and 22. Average it out. Before taxes each one is living on about $4,000 a year. Just about average so that you can identify with the family and shake in fear.

Harry Alexander, Mrs. Wright's lawyer, says that his client's health is not the best. She suffers from obesity, anemia and hypertension. Last year she had a fibroid tumor operation. All the better for the IRS to make the point that you can expect no mercy, that you can be suffering from terminal cancer but, if you don't pay up, you die in a dungeon.

Really nice people. Louis Morse, another lawyer who has worked on this case, says that for months they tried to find out how much his client owed so that she could begin making reparations, but that the IRS refused to tell them. They didn't want her paying on her taxes because she had been selected by the bureaucratic roulette of cruelty to play the part of Ms. Terrifying Example. If they'd accepted any money by way of restitution, it would have made it legally much harder to lock her up in the slammer.

The IRS couldn't get away with this without the active collusion of the Judge, in this case U.S. District Chief Judge William B. Jones. I called Judge Jones' office and was told the following: 1) the Judge was away at a judges' conference; 2) when the Judge got back from being away he was going away again; 3) the voice thought it might be quite some time before my message got to Judge Jones; and 4) the Judge never talked about cases except to lawyers.

If the Judge ever responds to the message I'll tell you what he said, but in the meantime we are entitled to conclude that the Judge is abusing his office by turning his courtroom into the punitive arm of IRS terror. A humane, merciful or equitable judge simply doesn't send a woman like Mrs. Wright to jail for committing a crime of this nature. Never mind comparing Mrs. Wright's fate with that of Spiro T. Agnew who did the same thing. The sentence is ipso facto barbaric.

Without demanding any affront to the dignity of members of the federal bench, a judge who metes out such a shocking sentence has an obligation to publicly explain it and submit himself to questioning. Judges are right to press their knees together and draw robes around their feet when the trial is going on, but they have no business copping a plea of professional reticence after the trial is over and they've done their work. If Judge Jones hasn't forgotten his job is justice, not helping the IRS to collect the taxes, he ought to step forward and defend this incomprehensible action.

Representatives have been holding hearings on the gangster tactics of some firms in the debt collection industry. The premise for these hearings is that in a civilized society there must be restraints on what you can do to make people pay a debt.

The scary tricks of the debt collection agencies are nothing compared to what the U.S. government does to collect what it's owed. The IRS, as a matter of policy, behaves like dockside loan sharks, and Congress knows it but persists in giving the citizenry no protection from the sadistic tax-collecting apparatus it has created.

The first step in securing that protection is to decriminalize tax evasion. No other institution, company or individual in this society can collect its debts by throwing people in jail. Yet the debts get paid. Failure to pay one's taxes for whatever cause should be a civil matter so that if the IRS wants to get someone like Mrs. Wright, it can slap a lien on her house or garnish her wages, only no jail and no terror.

Pravda's Big Concern

It is as of today, official. The Soviet Union has confirmed what some critics of President Carter have been saying, for the most part surreptitiously. Official United States concern for human rights endangers detente and demilitarization. To use the words of Pravda, we must reject the "illogic of the argument" that we can simultaneously pursue human rights in the Soviet Union, plus detente. "Detente and the normal conduct of talks presuppose the establishment of trust between the negotiating partners and respect for the laws and traditions of each other, while attempts to exert pressure on us and to bargain for concessions of principles are bringing about an atmosphere of distrust."

Concerning which, a few observations:

1. The United States through President Carter has been bringing pressure on the Soviet Union to observe its own laws and commitments. This point cannot be overstressed. The Soviet Constitution of 1936, the United Nations Covenants ratified by the Soviet Union in 1973, and the Helsinki Agreement of 1975 are explicit statements of Soviet commitments to principles. There is nothing Mr. Carter has urged upon the Soviet Union in any way different from what the Soviet Union freely undertook.

Consider now the bearing of all this. For the Soviet Union to say that we are now asking it to make "concessions of principles" can only mean that its "principle" is to make a public commitment and then to flout it. There is no other meaning, in the circumstances, that can be attached to their objection.

Now this being so, the bearing on SALT II is quite direct. The Soviet Union would appear to be saying that it is a matter of principle for the Soviet Union to make a commitment on one hand, while rejecting it with another. With its right hand, it signs the Helsinki Agreement guaranteeing, e.g., freedom of emigration for dissidents, while with its left hand it turns the lock on the prison door.

The relevance to arms control is obvious: the Soviet Union is suggesting that, as a matter of principle, it will promise to disarm pari passu with the United States, meanwhile pursuing its policy of military expansionism. Is there another understanding?

U.S. Halts Israeli

Arms Sale

WASHINGTON — In the diplomatic backrooms along Embassy Row, the State Department has long been accused of "tilting" toward the Arab countries.

Now, the Pentagon has joined the chorus, charging that "anti-Israel bias" in the State Department has torpedoed an important sale of Israeli fighter planes to Latin America.

A bitter, confidential Pentagon briefing paper bluntly warns that the international repercussions will cause the United States to lose influence to the Soviet Union.

We have pieced together the details of the highly sensitive negotiations. The Israelis, trying to repair their wounded economy, arranged to sell 24 of their sophisticated Kfir fighter-bombers to Ecuador.

Because the Israeli planes contain American-made motors built by General Electric, however, the Jewish state needed U.S. approval to make the sale. But the Israelis repeatedly were assured that this would not be a problem. Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger twice discussed the sale with Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres and reportedly offered his encouragement, our sources said.

Yet after the Carter administration took office, the State Department, with President Carter's personal approval, promptly vetoed the sale. A spokesman said the deal "would run counter to our policy against the sale of advanced and sophisticated aircraft to Latin America."

The Pentagon briefing paper, which apparently included contributions from industry and Israeli sources, calls this decision "irrational." Such biting accusations rarely surface from the private battleground of executive in-fighting.

"The Soviet Union and France are certain to be the only beneficiaries" of the ban, the paper warns. Ecuador has already announced it will seek weapons from those countries. "If the Soviet Union concludes a sale to Ecuador, then it is likely that Soviet advisors and technicians will accompany Soviet aircraft. The Soviet Union is certain to turn any sale to Ecuador into a 'political victory.'"

Ecuador has told the United States in not-so-diplomatic language that it considers the ban an "unfriendly gesture," and threatened to buy no more American equipment. Ecuadorian Ambassador Gustavo Ycaza has voiced his "strong concern" in private meetings with President Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

The Israelis are equally unhappy. The dispute has damaged Israel's credibility, tarnished its leaders and deprived it of $200 million in sales, the Pentagon brief says. Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin privately complained about the ban to Carter during his White House visit last week. But Carter, who has pledged to reduce American arms sales worldwide, isn't budging.

NUCLEAR PROPAGANDA: The difference between the government's energy officials and the executives they regulate often is so hazy you can't tell them apart without a scorecard.

Some energy officials are so close to the nuclear industry, for example, that they tried to launch a public relations campaign for atomic power. The taxpayers would have footed the bill for the propaganda campaign, but the giant corporations and private utilities would have reaped the profits.

The short-lived effort began in September, 1975, when Federal Energy assistant administrator Gorman Smith urged the agency to establish an office to promote nuclear power. Ostensibly, the FEA office would merely analyze and formulate policy.

But the office secretly drew up plans to brainwash the public with a strident pro-nuclear campaign. It included an all-out media blitz against Proposition 13, the referendum to keep nuclear power plants out of California.

The confidential battle plan included sending government advocates to influence the editorial boards of California's largest newspapers. The publicity value of radio and television appearances also was weighed.

The agency planned to provide speakers to pro-nuclear groups. It hoped to recruit supporters of former California Gov. Pat Brown and ex-California congressmen to spread the nuclear message. And it devised a "Red Ball Campaign" to argue that nuclear power is the only clean alternative for the increasingly polluted West Coast.

The secret campaign, conceived under Frank Zarb, also targeted Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico for an invasion of film, slides, pamphlets and speeches by top agency officials. A plan was also drawn up to persuade young children of the benefits of nuclear energy through school programs. The total bill to the taxpayers for the ad campaign would have been $200,000.

However, Rep. Sidney Yates, D-I, snuffed out the funding for the office when he discovered it would be nothing but a shill for the nuclear industry. The persistent Zarb tried to revive the office, but his attempt was thwarted by Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich. Although the office was formally abolished, Zarb helped persuade California voters to allow nuclear development.

•SUIT

The lawsuit was first filed with the clerk of Ulster County court on September 3, 1974.

The trial, which will resume Monday morning, is expected to run at least through the end of next week with both Mrs. Sauls and the defendants calling a number of witnesses.

Reorganization Bill Action Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Final congressional action is expected late next week on President Carter's request for power to reorganize the government — a measure one congressman calls "the best unconstitutional bill that can be drawn up."

The bill, like one the Senate has passed, cleared the House Government Operations Committee Thursday and will go to the full House Tuesday. Final approval by both houses could come by the end of the week.

Committee chairman Jack Brooks of Texas had fought the administration on the issue, saying Congress should have the authority to pass judgment on the President Carter's plan subject to a veto by him.

But the plan, as it now stands, goes the other way. The Congress retains veto powers on Carter's reorganization, but one House must act within 60 days after the plan is submitted. And its this reversal of form that upset Brooks.

"This is the best unconstitutional bill that can be drawn up," he declared just before the panel voted 39 to 3 on compromise legislation granting Carter's a three-year authority to restructure executive branch departments and agencies.

Brooks, who voted for the measure, insisted with other constitutional experts it was unconstitutional for Congress to allow executive branch changes in legislated programs without voting either for or against them, rather than just against them.

"There is a real risk the reverse procedure we are following will be held unconstitutional," Brooks said, although he is satisfied with provisions he placed in the bill to ensure that any member can demand a vote on each reorganization plan.

The bill would specifically forbid abolition or transfer of an independent regulatory agency, and prohibit more than three reorganization plans from coming before Congress at any one time.

Carter asked for four-year authority to use the reorganization powers granted to presidents since 1949. But the House committee followed the lead of the Senate which limited it to three years.

•RICHTER

As for other discrepancies in recalling the details of happenings in his court two years ago, Richter said he has handled at least 30,000 appearances as a judge and gave the commission "his best, honest recollection" of the incidents in question. He was critical of commission members for assuring him that if he didn't recall certain facts, he shouldn't worry, "it won't operate to your prejudice."

Richter has been on the bench for more than 10 years and elected the last time without opposition.

More than once, presiding Judge Frank Pino has expressed concern because the Kingston City Court is not a court of record.

Such a court would offer proof of every word and courtroom action.

Richter said the city budget couldn't afford court reporters for other than trial work.

Richter's lawyer, Charles Gaffney, expressed concern because the commission failed to detail and "fully inform" Richter as to what he would be questioned on before he testified. Richter testified he had not been drinking the day he sentenced Malanious. The night before he coached a ball game and went home, he said.

Richter volunteered that the City of Kingston's crime rate is substantially lower than the nearby cities of Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and Middletown.

This was due, he said, to his role in the criminal justice system in the city, his understanding of people, his sense of fairness and the fact that there are good race relations in Kingston.

When the trial concludes today, Richter will have had at least 16 character witnesses testify for him.

Thursday's supporters also included Deputy Police Chief William Slover, Lt. Guernsey Burger Jr., Officer Ira Hadsel and former city police officer Carl Kanasiewicz.

Four Kingston lawyers also came to Richter's defense including Martocci, Charles Saccaman, William Pretsch and Barry Lippman. Court reporter

George Covell testified that he had worked in Richter's court 12 times and that he had a reputation for honesty and integrity.

Glassman, who has observed Richter in court "hundreds of times," called him stable and qualified. Slover said Richter "bent over backwards" to help kids and Hadsel judged him to be reliable and very honest.

Having known the judge for 40 years, Janasiewicz approved his reputation as a lawyer and a judge and Burger volunteered that Richter was highly thought of and well-liked.

Martocci called the judge "frank, firm and fair," a man with an excellent reputation among members of the local bar association.

Asked by Judge Pino if Richter was a man of integrity and truthfulness, Saccaman agreed, saying he never doubted it.

Pretsch and Lippman, who have handled many criminal cases in Richter's court, labeled him an excellent jurist.

The trial is expected to conclude the trial today.

Worker Serious After Mishap

WEST HURLEY — A 19-year-old warehouse worker at Numrich Arms Corp. was seriously hurt Thursday when a crate of guns toppled back on the forklift he was operating and struck him in the head.

According to Kingston State Police, Michael Freer of Ulster Park was struck by a 400-pound crate that broke loose as he attempting to unload them on a high stack. The accident occurred at about 10:30 a.m. Freer was rushed by Fatum's Ambulance Service to Kingston Hospital, where he was listed in "serious" condition in the intensive care unit with head injuries.

The accident was investigated by Trooper Gary R. Van Allen.

Senate Committee Approves Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee today approved a tax cut for most persons who use the standard deduction, although about two million middle and upper income Americans would be hit with a slight tax increase.

The committee's plan also would lead to greatly simplified tax forms for use on taxes due by April 15, 1978.

The committee neared completion of work on President Carter's tax stimulus package which includes $50-per-person rebates, business tax incentives and the small tax cut approved today.

Under the standard deduction change approved by voice vote today, the process of calculating the standard deduction as a percentage of income would be abolished and everyone could claim a flat standard deduction of $3,200 for married couples and $2,200 for single persons. The current maximum deduction for couples is $2,800 and for singles is $2,400.

This means that all married couples would get a tax decrease if they use the standard deduction, but single persons making above $13,750 would be hit with a tax increase.

The average tax increase for some two million single persons would be about $50 each.

The committee bill, expected to be completed Monday, still faces action on the Senate floor and then must go to conference with a House-passed bill.

There is no indication of which deductions will finally be written into the tax laws.

this was the best alternative," Kramer said.

However, according to Mrs. Mastondrea in New Jersey, it was "our understanding that the children had been returned to their mother in Ulster County. We got that impression because they all returned together."

Right now, a caseworker's aide is living 24 hours a day with Mrs. Edwards and her children in the Jersey City apartment where they resided before the children were found March 2 in the Kingston welfare office, accompanied only by an unsigned note telling authorities, "I can't care for them any more."

Mrs. Edwards will receive mental health counseling and vocational training, and the children's welfare will be "periodically evaluated" by New Jersey authorities, Mrs. Mastondrea said.

Invaders of Zaire Being Welcomed

KINSHASA, Zaire (UPI)

— Invading Katangan exile forces, which Zaire says were led by Cuban officers across the Angolan border, received warm welcomes in the four towns they have overrun in the copper-rich Shaba province, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said today.

But the official denied reports that Kolwezi, a mining center in the area about 900 miles southeast of Kinshasa, had also been taken.

"We just talked with our folks in Shaba — the consulate in Lubumbashi and the U.S. construction firm in Kolwezi — and to the best of our knowledge, the town has not fallen," the official said. "Our people there say the town is calm and has not fallen."

But he said Methodist missionaries in the south of the country confirmed invaders had seized the town of Sandoa, about 55 miles east of the Angolan border and about 200 miles east of Kolwezi.

Three other towns were captured in the early stages of the fighting last week.

Shaba province was called Katanga before the country, the former Belgian Congo, became independent in 1960. The province's copper accounts for 7 per cent of world production of the metal and with other mineral resources the province produces well over half of Zaire's exports.

State Department officials said in Washington 26 wives and children of U.S. construction workers were evacuated Thursday from the town in view of the "deteriorating" situation.

Drug Center 'Back to Normal'

RHINECLIFF — Everything was back to normal Thursday at Holy Cross Drug Rehabilitation Center, scene of a student disturbance a week earlier, and Director Steven R. Gross complained that some aspects of the incident had been blown out of proportion by the news media.

Four 16-year-old boys from the New York City area later were arrested for instigating the disturbance and were ordered held at Dutchess County Jail in lieu of $5,000 to $10,000 bail each pending a hearing.

Although most of the center's four dozen students were involved, the incident lasted "no more than 35 minutes," Gold said, "not the three hours that was reported in the media."

And while 20 state troopers came to the scene, it was their presence rather than any action by them, plus the effect of school officials on the scene, that quieted the boys down, Gold said.

Damage estimates to the school, listed by the media as "thousands of dollars," in reality was $600 to $1,000 — and most of that in broken glass, he said. "I realize that some of this information was given out by police, so the media wasn't entirely at fault," Gold said.

The center, run by the Roman Catholic Church in a half dozen buildings that once were the Cardinal Farley Military Academy, got "quickly back to normal" after the disturbance, Gold said.

Two Seek Board Posts

KINGSTON — Dr. Fredrick Schwitz, a Kingston orthodontist, and Alfred Massa, a resident of the Wall Street area are both circulating petitions as possible candidates in the May 3 election in the Kingston school district.

Schwitz, who has one child in the school system, says his candidacy is a "maybe thing" and "nothing final has been decided." He is believed to have strong backing from WHITA, a local taxpayer organization that has had a major influence in recent school board elections.

Massa was unavailable for comment, but he is also reported to have the backing of WHITA. Neither man has ever run for the school board before.

Last week former board member Ronald Meyer announced his candidacy, citing opposition to the possibility of redistricting the Kingston schools. Meyer served on the board from July 1975 to June 1976.

There are two seats open in the election, one three year post and one four year post, as the board phases out its five year policy.

The Whiffenpoofs pose on a Monday night at Mory's around the traditional two-handled "Mory Cup." The elegant container, filled with a potent house punch, is passed between Whiffenpoof and patron and back again, and the singing becomes more mellow as the night progresses. Behind the group hangs the original "Whiff" table' on which the Whiffenpoof emblem was carved as soon as it was adopted in 1912. Along with the emblem are initials of the songsters from each year up to 1974, when they ran out of room and started a new table.

The Most Famous College Glee Club in the World

'Whiffenpoofs' Booked by Mendelssohn

KINGSTON—The "Whiffenpoofs," the most famous college glee club in the world, will appear at the Mendelssohn Club's spring concert, "Music Lives Where History Begins!" on Friday and Saturday, April 1 and 2, at the M. Clifford Miller Junior High School Auditorium.

The Whiffenpoofs traditionally consist of 14 elite senior members of the Yale University Glee Club. Like their name and music, the history of the Whiffenpoofs is quite distinctive. They began in the early 1900's as the "Varsity Quartet," a group of the top warblers from the Yale Glee Club whose services were in great demand at alumni smokers and undergraduate functions.

While the quartet often serenaded the undergraduate residents of Yale's Old Campus during the fall, they quite understandably found New Haven's winter weather unsuited to outdoor singing. It was during the winter "layoff" of 1908-09 that the songsters decided they enjoyed performing too much to limit themselves according to the weather. One of the members suggested a weekly meeting at a public house on the corner of Temple and Crown Streets, where the quartet might enjoy an early dinner followed by an evening of song. Thus, in January 1909 began a tradition honored by Whiffenpoofs ever since: Monday nights at Mory's.

The same imaginative fellow who suggested meeting at Mory's also proposed the group call itself the "Whiffenpoofs." The Whiffenpoof emblem, carved on the Whiffenpoof table at Mory's, was adopted in 1912. It was designed by a "Yale Record" cartoonist, who was told it should look like nothing found on land or sea. The resulting symbol is best described as a dragon having mint leaves for wings, a horse's neck, and a swizzle stick for a perch.

Over the years, the Whiffenpoofs have become internationally known for their extraordinary singing. Each spring, the outgoing 14 members conclude their term with a tour of Europe. The 1977 group has just completed a short tour, singing in Los Angeles, Sacramento and Houston. They will be appearing in South America just a week before they come to Kingston, so the Mendelssohn Club feels especially fortunate to be having the Whiffenpoofs at its spring concert.

Tickets for the April concert, which will also include performances by the 180-voice Mendelssohn Club Bicentennial Choir and a "Conductors Showcase" are available at Abrams in Kingston and Sound-In, Woodstock. Residents of the New Paltz area can pick up program flyers and ticket order forms at the Ulster Savings Bank, New Paltz. (Because of the success of last year's spring concert, it is not anticipated that tickets will be sold at the door.)

For further information, contact Bill Lanier, president of the Mendelssohn Club, Kingston.

Springtown Chamber Winds to Perform

KINGSTON—Holy Cross Church in a series of Sunday afternoon concerts will present the Springtown Chamber Winds and guest artist, Mary Jane Corry, harpsichordist, Sunday, March 20, 3 p.m.

Springtown Chamber Winds, a group of five young musicians, have been heard frequently in the Hudson Valley area since its founding in 1975. The quintet's repertoire ranges from Baroque to contemporary works. A specialty is the original compositions, and arrangements of works written for different instrumentations by Eric Goldberg, bassoonist of the group. Other members include Jackie Steltz, flute; Kathy Karlson, oboe; Jim McGroarty, clarinet; and Rick Jones, French Horn.

For this program the quintet will present the first performance of "Music that Grows in Snow" by Eric Goldberg as well as works for winds and harpsichord by Rameau, Byrd, Bozza, Villa-Lobos, Soler, Bach, Scarlatti.

Mary Jane Corry, guest artist, is a member of the faculty at SUC, New Paltz. She has studied in Paris with Boulanger and at the Munich Conservatory, Germany. She received her Ph.D. in Musicology at Stanford University. She has frequently appeared in the Hudson Valley both as soloist and playing continuo parts. In October she performed as soloist in the Brockport Keyboard Festival. She plays a two manual instrument built by Carl Fudge of Boston, according to a Ruckers-Taskin 18th Century Model.

The unusual combination of winds and harpsichord add a unique flavor to this program and Goldberg's talks on specific works add enjoyable informality. Admission is $4 for adults; students and senior citizens, $2.50.

Temple Nursery Registration Slated

KINGSTON—Lawrence Borzumato, a professor at Ulster County Community College, will be guest speaker at the Open House Registration night Tuesday, March 22, 8 p.m., at Temple Emanuel Nursery School, 243 Albany Ave. His topic will be "Theories of How Children Learn to Read." A resident of Stone Ridge, Professor Borzumato is director of the college skills center at UCCC which teaches reading improvements and speed reading. He also teaches broadcasting courses at the College plus college skills at Napanoch State Prison.

Registration for the nursery school will be held in conjunction with the open house. The school offers two sessions for the coming year. Mrs. Mary Jane Klein, a graduate of State University College at New Paltz, is teacher. She majored in education with a minor in music. Teaching experiences have included Campus School Nursery, early primary kindergarten, and first grade in the R.R. Bennett School, Onteora Central School District, and project head start programs for pre-school children.

The board of directors and Mrs. Klein invites all interested parents to the open house-registration night. Further information concerning the schedules and fees may be obtained from Mrs. Jonathan Eichhorn and Mrs. James Barba.

Sewing with Leather To Be Featured at 4-H

KINGSTON—Sewing with leather and special techniques involved when working with genuine leather will be featured at the Ulster County Cooperative Extension 4-H program, beginning with an introductory class March 21. This workshop class is being taught by 4-H clothing leader, Mrs. James Dunbar, for 4-H leaders and any other interested persons who have the sewing experience and background. Classes will be held each Monday during April. There is a registration fee. Because of the limited amount of materials and resources available on the subject of sewing with leather, Mrs. Jean Kobayashi, Cooperative Extension agent, feels that this is a special opportunity to learn from an experienced and knowledgeable teacher. "The 4-H clothing program in Ulster County remains one of New York State's finest," Mrs. Kobayashi pointed out, "because of 4-H leader training programs of this caliber and kind. The volunteer adult leaders are taught and trained."

Truck Caught Short at Crossing

LAKE KATRINE — A cement truck driver who got caught short on the railroad tracks was ticketed Thursday for leaving the scene of a property damage accident and violating a crossing red light.

Town of Ulster police said Richard Wagner, 39, of Rifton drove onto the railroad crossing at Leggs Mills Road, despite the flashing red lights, because the gates had not come down and no train was in sight.

However, as soon as he got onto the tracks, the gates lowered and a train appeared. Police said Wagner abruptly backed the cement truck through the rear gate and then left the scene after the train had passed.

Authorities said a railroad employee on the caboose caught the registration number of the truck, owned by Nelson Redi-Mix Co. of Lake Katrine, and Wagner was ticketed a few hours later.

O'Brien, 45, was found floating in the river by a tugboat captain. Undersheriff Fred Scoralick said an autopsy showed O'Brien had drowned and the body had been in the river for several weeks.

O'Brien was reported missing Dec. 22 by Troy police.

Andrew I. Easton, 20, of Rosendale was arrested early Thursday in the Town of Kingston on charges of possessing a controlled substance, marijuana. He was ordered held at Ulster County Jail in lieu of $50 bail.

Ulster County sheriff's deputies said Easton was arrested in a car and brought before Town Judge Richard Alberstadt, who set a March 22 reappearance date.

Seat Belts Credited
Use of seat belts was credited with preventing fatal injuries in a two-car crash this morning on Rt. 9W in West Park.

Highland State Police said Gary Syria, 71, of Kingston was passing several cars in the southbound lane at about 9 a.m. when his vehicle smashed head-on into a car driven by Gary L. Gerstenfeld, 32, of Wappingers Falls.

Syria was brought by Doctor's Ambulance Service to Kingston Hospital, where he was being treated in the emergency room. Gerstenfeld received treatment at Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie, where he was expected to be released.

Latin Americans Spurn U.S. Aid
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Five Latin American governments, angered by President Carter's outspoken human rights policies, have rejected U.S. military aid and credits totaling nearly $74 million.

El Salvador, one of the smallest republics in the Western Hemisphere, was the latest to join in what a top U.S. official described Thursday as a "symbolic" gesture of protest over State Department reports on alleged human rights violations there.

The Salvadoran action came shortly after its Central American neighbor, Guatemala, also served notice it was renouncing U.S. military aid. Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay took the same step earlier.

Chile did so last year, but its action was in response to a decision by the Congress to cut both military and economic aid to that country because of alleged human rights violations.

State Department spokesman Frederick Brown declined direct comment on the latest actions.

"We are anxious to have good relations with Latin America," he said.

$99 Million for 54,000 State Employees

Eastman Kodak Doles Out Big Annual Bonus

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — The message starts appearing in store window signs right after the New Year. Not long afterward, radio and television commercial announcers begin blurting it all out all day long.

The basic message is always the same: "Buy now and pay with your Kodak bonus."

That long-awaited "bonus" finally arrived today for some 54,000 area employees of the Eastman Kodak Co.

The photographic giant doled out more than $99 million in bonus, or annual wage dividend, payments to its workers. Most Kodak people took their bonuses in cash. But a significant chunk, more than $29 million, went into the company's savings and investment plan.

Begun in 1912, the Kodak bonus has begun a major attraction for prospective employees, and a tremendous boost for the area's economy.

This year, each Kodak worker was given $30.63 for every $1,000 he or she earned during the past five years. For many Kodak veterans, that figure adds up to several thousands of dollars. The amount varies from year to year, but not by much.

Nationwide, the company distributed $145.3 million to nearly 82,000 persons.

But the bulk of the money is poured into the Rochester area economy. Local businesses, particularly those dealing in "big-ticket" items, start preparing several months ahead for the bonus money.

"I'd say the Kodak bonus probably accounts for about 10 per cent of my annual business," says Bob Santo, president of the Waterbed Works. "It's definitely better than the Christmas season for me."

Joe Sullivan, co-owner of Rosa and Sullivan Appliances, says his company's "buy now, pay later" plan is highly popular. He allows people to carry off appliances, televisions without down payments.

"They come back in March with their bonus money and pay for the items," he says. "We don't have any trouble. Kodak people are good, solid customers."

As expected, the local Chamber of Commerce is all smiles this time of year.

"To say the least, the bonus money provides a tremendous boost for area retail sales and is a one of Rochester's great attractions," said Michael P. Vadala, manager of economic development for the chamber.

But no one smiles more than the Kodak people themselves.

"We're saving up for a new boat and this sure will come in handy," said Kathleen Sargent, a corporate information department employee, waving the dividend check in the air.

Greg Jones, a Kodak Park laborer, planned to use his money for a new motorcycle. "When you get a check like this, why spend it on something practical?" he asked.

UCLA Ousted from NCAA Tourney

Idaho State Turns Bruins Into Pussycats

By UPI

Ask the average sports fan to name a college basketball powerhouse and he'll probably respond with UCLA, Michigan, North Carolina or Kentucky.

Three of the above proved worthy of their reputation Thursday night but the fourth, the No. 4-ranked Bruins of UCLA, acted more like pussycats in a shocking 76-75 loss to unheralded Idaho State in the NCAA West Regional semifinals. The loss was only the third for the 10-time national champion Bruins in their last 52 NCAA appearances.

"This was our greatest victory ever—it's got to be," said Idaho State Coach Jim Killingsworth. "We've never played a No. 4 team before, let alone beaten one. Unfortunately we don't have long to celebrate."

"We had one advantage in that nobody has seen us play. We played a man-to-man defense all year until our last three games, so that throws out all the earlier scouting reports on us."

"The best team won tonight," said UCLA Coach Gene Bartow. "It's history. We lost. Jim's got a great team and they're very deserving of their 25-4 record. If we played 10 times, I don't know how many they would win. But they won tonight and that's what counts."

Bartow denied the Bruins might have been looking past the lightly-regarded Bengals.

"I don't think we were overconfident," said Bartow. "We saw them beat Long Beach State last weekend. (Steve) Hayes has got to be one of the finest offensive big men we've faced this year."

"I'm not really surprised we won. I'm excited and happy, but not surprised," said Hayes, who led all scorers with 27 points. The 7-foot center also grabbed 12 rebounds.

Idaho State trailed by six at halftime, but battled back to grab the lead with eight minutes to go and were ahead 62-56 when UCLA went into a fullcourt trapping press. But the harassing defense resulted in eight Bruin fouls in the final six minutes and the Bengals scored 15 of their final 17 points on free throws to stay just ahead of the fast closing Pac-8 champions.

In the final 37 seconds UCLA fouled reserve Ernie Wheeler twice. And the 5-foot-11 freshman, who hadn't hit a shot all game, made all four free throws to preserve the victory.

"Ernie's very good in the clutch," said Killingsworth. "He's just a freshman, so he doesn't know how much those four shots meant. When he's a senior, he'll miss some of those."

Ed Thompson followed Hayes in scoring with 14 points and Greg Griffin had 12. Griffin, playing the entire second half with four fouls, also held Player of the Year Marques Johnson to just two foul shots in the final 20 minutes. Johnson, playing the last two games with an infected wisdom tooth, led UCLA with 21 points. Dave Greenwood added 20 points and 14 rebounds and Roy Hamilton scored 11.

The win upped ISU's record to 25-4, tying their best season mark ever in 1957 and sending the Bengals into the regional championship finals for the first time in the team's history.

North Carolina and Kentucky earned berths in the East Regional finals, but the third-ranked Tar Heels were sorely tested before prevailing over Notre Dame, 79-77. Kentucky was an easy 93-78 winner over Virginia Military Institute.

North Carolina, which practically has a patent on the four-corners offense, took advantage of the inability of Notre Dame to execute one. The Fighting Irish led by 14 early in the second half but, up by five with 5:45 remaining, Coach Digger Phelps tried to run out the clock and got burned.

SPORTS TODAY

Young's Stock Up

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Jimmy Young won a new chance for a crack at the world heavyweight boxing title Thursday night by handing heavily favored George Foreman only the second defeat of his professional career.

The 28-year-old Philadelphia native won the 12-round distance with the hulking Foreman, who tried vainly to land a knockout blow before his swifter opponent wracked up enough points to give him a unanimous decision.

Foreman, suffering from hand cramps and dehydration, was taken to Professional Hospital after the fight for a checkup.

Foreman was badly battered in the final round when Young scored a brief knockdown and hammered away repeatedly at Foreman's head with a combination of lefts and rights.

A delirious crowd of 12,000 fight fans urged him on by screaming, "Jimmy Young, Jimmy Young!"

Promoter Don King said after the bout that Young would have a chance at the winner of the Ken Norton-Duane Bobick bout scheduled for Madison Square Garden in New York May 11. The winner of the second Young fight will have a chance at Muhammad Ali, King said.

In the post-fight news conference, Young said that Foreman nearly knocked him out in the critical seventh round when the larger fighter staggered Young with a left hook to the head.

Recovering by the sound of the bell, Young had Foreman on the defensive against an assault of lefts and rights.

"I really didn't think I was going to make it," Young said. "I saw my best defense was an offense."

After the seventh, Young dominated the rest of the way with jabs and hooks with both hands.

Young said the cheers from the crowd "kept me going."

"I heard them," Young said in describing his best performance in the 12th round. "I think I had him on the verge of a knockout three or four times."

Young, who has been criticized for lacking punching power, said he did not "put George away" in the final round because "I had to be careful. George can hurt you even when he's going down."

In the first four rounds, Foreman was warned repeatedly by referee Waldemar Schmidt, who docked Foreman one point in the third for what he called "unnecessary roughing."

Young said Foreman hit him with his elbows "and nearly broke my left arm" in one of the clinches.

The three scorecards had Young ahead by 118-111, 115-114 and 116-112.

Young upped his record to 21 wins, including seven KOs, five losses and four draws and earned $60,000. Foreman dropped to 45-2, with his only other setback to Ali in Zaire in 1974. He got $80,000 for his losing effort.

On the same card, a savagely-punching Alfredo Escalera of Puerto Rico retained his World Boxing Council share of the world junior lightweight crown with an easy sixth-round TKO over challenger Ronnie McGarvey of Baltimore, Md.

Finley to Appeal

More Power for Bowie

CHICAGO (UPI) — Major league baseball owners intended to give their commissioner virtual dictatorial powers, a federal judge ruled Thursday, so Oakland A's Owner Charles O. Finley lost his $3.5 million damage suit against Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

"It is the judgment of this court that plaintiff Charles O. Finley & Co. Inc. has failed to sustain the allegations of its complaint," Judge Frank J. McGarr ruled, "and the relief sought therein is denied. Judgment is consequently entered for defendant Bowie K. Kuhn."

Finley said he would appeal the decision. "My only hope now is with the appellate court," he said. "This is the decision of just one man. We believe that 90 per cent of the judges in the United States would have reached the opposite decision, and we think the judges of the appellate court will, too."

"Naturally I'm disappointed with the decision. I've been in baseball 18 years, and I couldn't help but think this is 18 years of blood, sweat and sacrifice down the drain."

McGarr's decision did not grant a request by Kuhn's attorney that Finley be forced to pay the Commissioner's legal costs.

However, the two major leagues voted to indemnify Kuhn, should he have lost the suit, so presumably his legal fees will be shared by 26 major league clubs while Finley must pay his own expenses. It was estimated legal fees would substantially exceed $1 million for each side.

Finley's suit was based on Kuhn's action last June to nullify Oakland's sale for $3.5 million of pitchers Vida Blue and Rolfe Fingers and outfielder Joe Rudi to the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox.

Finley charged Kuhn not only acted arbitrarily and capriciously but beyond his authority. He sought damages from the commissioner.

While Blue signed a three-year contract with the A's, both Fingers and Rudi played out their options and signed later as free agents for bonus contracts with the San Diego Padres and California Angels without recompense to Finley.

"The question before the court is not whether Bowie Kuhn was wise to do what he did, but rather whether he had the authority," McGarr said.

"The major league agreement ... provides that when the Commissioner suspects that any act, transaction or practice is not in the best interests of baseball, his function is to determine what preventive, remedial or punitive action is appropriate, and to take such action."

"Neither the Major League agreement itself, the principles of construction applied to it, nor the history of its formulation and the exercise of power under it, support the contention that authority so broadly granted and so conspicuously unfettered is intended to be limited to the areas of rules enforcement, dishonesty and moral turpitude."

"Many years ago ... the court determined this same issue in this same manner. From that date to this, if the signatories to the major league agreement had wished to bar the commissioner from their property rights in players' contracts, it has always been and still remains within their power to do so. They have not."

Bonnies, Houston In NIT Final

NEW YORK (UPI) — If nothing else, the championship game of the 40th National Invitation Tournament Sunday afternoon figures to be high-scoring, physical and punctuated with outstanding individual play.

St. Bonaventure, the tournament's Cinderella team, and Houston, which has won more games than any other major college team, advanced to the finals Thursday night, though each had to struggle to victory after assuming commanding leads midway through the second half.

The Bonnies, 22-6, defeated Villanova 86-82 as Glenn Hagan scored 22 of his season-high 26 points in the second half and provided key floor leadership when the club was plagued by deep foul trouble.

"We're thrilled to be playing in the finals," said St. Bonaventure Coach Jim Satalin. "I thought we might lose the game, but we hung in there. This team has played well all year long and we've got experienced kids now."

Houston, 29-7, became the first team from the Southwest Conference to reach the NIT finals when Otis Birdsong broke loose from a tight defense to score the go-ahead jumper with 1:46 left and feed off for an assist 18 seconds later in an 82-76 victory over Alabama. The win was the 400th in Coach Guy Lewis' career.

"I can't wait for victory No. 401," said Lewis grinning. "The championship game will be an interesting game. It'll be a battle of the boards. St. Bonaventure will be charged up Sunday. It'll be a terrific basketball game."

St. Bonaventure appeared on its way to an easy victory, leading by 13 points, 61-48, with 14 minutes left. But Essie Hollis, who scored 14 first-half points and dominated the backboards, drew his fourth personal foul with 13:17 left and Greg Sanders, who finished with 20, collected his fourth foul less than three minutes later.

Hagan, a 6-foot guard, then took control of the offense after the Bonnies' 13-point lead had dwindled to four, sinking five crucial free throws, stealing the ball twice and passing off for several baskets.

"I think I play well all the time," said Hagan, confidently. "I'm starting to concentrate on scoring more. I think I can be a big scorer. I go to the bucket well and the other team has to respect me."

Coleman Needs Special Strategy

STONE RIDGE—What's going to prevent Red Hook High's girls basketball team from winning another Ulster County Athletic League title Saturday when it meets Coleman at Ulster County Community College at 2 p.m.?

Coleman coach Deb Getty, whose team won the National Division with an 11-3 record, knows she'll need some special strategy to snap the Raiders' 44-game UCAL win streak. Especially since Red Hook won their Feb. 15 meeting, 56-42. And Raider coach John Kuhn, whose team won the American Division with a 15-0 mark, is expecting something from the Statesmen.

"I'm sure Coleman will come up with something special for us," said Kuhn. "I'm going to make sure we're not overconfident."

It will be hard for his team not to be after the way it has rampaged through the UCAL this year. With senior Kelly Mosher enjoying her best season ever and scoring 23 points per game, including 29 against Coleman, and the rebounding of Sandy Stash, Pat Kowalski and Denise Sevigny, Red Hook is a powerful quintet.

Getty's hopes lie in stopping Mosher. "Obviously, the key is containing Mosher," she said. "Her 29 points last time in the middle is what killed us. We'll try to close off the middle on her and make her shoot from the inside."

"On offense, everybody has to score for us," she added. "That's our best game. Everybody has to deliver."

And there's one other factor she hopes to capitalize on. "This is the last shot at Red Hook for my three seniors, Janet Knott, Kathy Turck and Cathy Blum. They want this game."

Knott leads the team in scoring with 15 points per game and has pulled down between 15-20 rebounds in each of the past few games. Turck and Blum contribute about 12 points each. Knott is the center, Kathy Mahoney joins Turck at forward and Jamie Widmann starts with Blum at guard. The bench includes capable subs in Beth Hooker, who was starting earlier in the season, Carol Schatzel, Meg Knott and Patty Ryan, the latter two up from the junior varsity. Jeanne Sanderl is out with an injury.

Red Hook will start Mosher, Stash, Kowalski and Ellen Tuohy, and either Sevigny or Barbara Skiba. Sevigny's status is unsure as she has been out with a cold.

There's an unknown factor thrown into this contest as the girls get to showcase their game at the Senate Gymnasium. "Ulster's court is much bigger than what we're both used to," noted Kuhn. "Conditioning will play a big factor. I know both teams are well-conditioned. I've seen Coleman play four times and they never seem to get tired."

'Violence' Kills Po'keepsie Tourney

POUGHKEEPSIE — The Poughkeepsie YMCA's post-season basketball tournament, which had become something of an institution in Hudson Valley sports over the last 32 years, will no longer be held.

The tournament which annually brought together some of the top talent of collegiate, professional and semi-pro ranks has fallen a victim to the "violence of the times," according to Don McKiernan, director of the YMCA.

"We really hated to do it," McKiernan said of the tournament committee's decision to abandon the competition. "We went through a long discussion on it, and we gave it a lot of consideration but we just decided we had to call it off for reasons of safety and security. We've had a lot of incidents the past few years. We didn't want it to reach a point where someone would get seriously hurt. We've had it for 32 years, but I'd rather go out now while we're still on top."

Violence on the court spilled over into the crowds that attended the games in recent years. "We have 16 or 17 different things going on during the tournament," said McKiernan, "and we can't have a policeman in every room."

Poor parking facilities, difficulties in scheduling arrangements and a decline in participating teams in recent years were also factors in the tourney's demise.

At its peak the event provided spectators with an excellent brand of basketball as well as an in-person look at some of the top stars of the day. York Larese, Nick "The Quick" Werkman, Hawthorne Wingo, Barry Kramer, Rich Rinaldi and George Bucci were some of the stars who competed in the tournament.

Aggies Beaten

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — Ollie Mack scored 24 points Thursday night to help San Jacinto (Tex.) to an 85-69 win over Region XV champion Farmingdale (N.Y.) in a quarterfinal game of the NJCAA basketball tournament.

San Jacinto took a 43-37 halftime lead and held a strong margin until Farmingdale, which was led by Reggie Parker with 23 points, hit nine straight points to close the gap to two, 48-46, with 14 minutes left. Then the Texans moved away again and held a solid edge to the finish.

San Jacinto meets Ellsworth (Iowa) in Friday's semifinals. The upset of the night saw top-rated Southern Idaho beaten by Independence (Kan.), 74-66.

Reserve Mike Young hit 10 straight points with 1:56 remaining to rally Mercer County (N.J.) to a 73-61 triumph over Shelby State and eliminate the Tennessee team in a consolation game.

Wendy Yoshimura Out on Bail

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—Wendy Yoshimura, convicted on bomb conspiracy charges and sentenced to prison, is being allowed freedom on bail just like her underground traveling companion Patricia Hearst.

Alameda County Superior Court Judge Martin Pulich set bail Thursday at $50,000 for Miss Yoshimura, 34, after sentencing her to state prison for a term of one to 15 years on a conspiracy charge and up to five years on each of two charges of possession of bomb materials and an automatic weapon.

The terms will run concurrently, and — under a law taking effect on July 1 — she could be released at any time upon serving between 16 months and three years.

Although Pulich did not mention Miss Hearst by name, he said it would be "a little anomalous" to refuse bail for Miss Yoshimura while Miss Hearst is free on bail.

Miss Hearst was sentenced to federal prison after conviction on bank robbery charges. She was released on bail, pending appeal, after she started serving her term.

The charges against Miss Yoshimura, a Japanese-American artist, resulted from discovery of bomb factory in a garage in nearby Berkeley in 1972.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, MARCH 19

Your birthday today: Your work objectives change, likewise the manner you collect your rewards, how you manage what you get. These changes are for the better, but you must start anew right where you are, lack the luxury of going back to optimum starting points. In relationships, roles and initiative are transferred. Today's natives are curious, don't talk easily of what they discover. Those born this year are practical jokers when young, serious experimenters later.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Small but significant changes emerge from recent ballyhoo. Strengthen reserves, sales resistance. Renew contacts with friends who have a lot to report.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]:

Eagerly awaited plans fall through. From a rehash of the upset, get ideas that ease disappointment, motivate hard work. Exert yourself, upgrade your lot.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Pick up, sort out the pieces carefully, discard what has served its purpose. Clear work, play areas for new activities. Offer hospitality, sensible promises.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Aftereffects of certain actions come into focus. You must make quick decisions, stick to them longer than thought. People in authority favor your cause.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Distinguish between those who have helped you, those you have helped. Make acknowledgements. Expect no thanks, especially if your contribution was vital.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Cope with an immediate problem you haven't faced before or an old hangup with a new twist. You learn in the solving, never get caught in the same bind again.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Much depends on timing. Pounce on trivial excuses to stir rivalry, divert attention from what you want. Pick jobs that take action, exercise, brief travel.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Expand into new territory, take on added authority if you're properly prepared. You ruffled feelings lately, make amends. Emotional satisfaction is available.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Channel nervous energy into useful moves. Don't try to sell anything beyond ideas. Among those you attract is someone of great potential importance.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Get out! Go! You've stuck with old routines too long. Excursions are favored. If weather, circumstances are at odds, take in a movie of exotic places.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Relax. Those who were a source of worry straighten out, adjust their course, mature nicely. Assistance isn't urgently needed, so your situation improves.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Negative conditions are imaginary. Get busy, dispel doubts. Romance is found in seemingly inappropriate places, inspires high hopes for a happy future.

TEEN FORUM

By JEAN ADAMS, Ph.D.

BOSSY: (Q.) I have this friend who tries to run my life. She is very possessive about my other friends. I care about her friendship very much and don't want to lose it. But I do want to keep my freedom. What should I do about this friend? — Smothering in South Carolina.

A.) Overpossessiveness destroys friendship. When we begin to lose our freedom because of someone's domination, we begin to be uncomfortable with that person, even to the point of dislike or anger. Explain to your friend that you both need other friends and that the present situation can only destroy the good feeling between you.

If she persists in her determination to pick or restrict your other friends, declare your independence from her and let her find someone else to boss around.

STARTING: (Q.) There is this girl Celia in school that I really like a lot. She is a sophomore and so am I. I would like to ask her on a date.

But I'm too nervous to do that. I just know I would look like a fool. Could you please tell me how I can overcome my nervousness and ask her?

First, do you have any idea how I could meet her? She isn't in any of my classes. How will I know if she likes me? — Afraid in Massachusetts.

(A.) You would indeed be foolish to ask a girl you have not even met for a date. But after you get to know her, asking her will be anything but foolish. Even if she says no, it will be an honor and a compliment to her and she will recognize it as such.

I think, though, that you're overcomplicating a simple situation. Learn Celia's schedule at school — where she goes and when.

Then make it a point to be there time and again, smiling at her, then talking a bit, then talking a bit more each time. This will lead to friendship and an atmosphere in which asking Celia for a date will be as natural as breathing.

DESPERATE DOUBLE IN TOURNAMENT PLAY

by Alfred Sheinwold

The experts who begin play today in the ten-day North American Championships at the Pasadena Convention Center are struggling for prestige, silver cups and, above all, master points. Today's hand shows a desperate double and defense in a 1947 tournament by the late Bert Lebar, the inventor of bridge master points.

trick. What could he get beside his two remaining aces?

The only chance was to promote a trump trick for West. This could be done if West were short in diamonds.

LEADS DIAMONDS
Lebar cashed the ace of diamonds and led another diamond. Declarer promptly returned the king of clubs, and Lebar won.

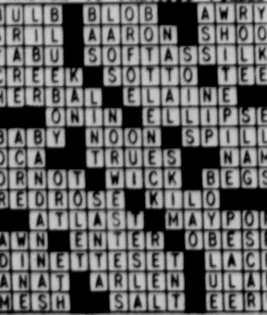

Now Lebar led a third diamond, and declarer couldn't shut out West's nine of clubs. If South ruffed low, West would overruff; and if South ruffed high, West's nine of clubs would become a sure winner later.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: ♦ J1065 ♠ Q1072 ♣ Q3 ♣ 952. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts. You could hardly have a weaker hand, but there's no law against making a bid with minimum values.

'Starry-Eyed Pragmatist' Viewed as Need for Catskill Mountain Line

WOODSTOCK -- Government officials should start looking for a professional "starry-eyed pragmatist" to take over research and planning for the Catskill Mountain Line, says railroad promoter Harris Gordon.

Gordon, president of the Catskill Mountain Transportation Corp., has sent a letter to 26 local and state officials, including Gov. Hugh Carey, urging immediate, cooperative action in hiring a planner to sift through the many possible uses of the soon-to-be-abandoned 80-mile stretch of track through Ulster and Delaware Counties.

Although proposals for private and public use of the line have been bantied about for a number of years, the March 1 Penn. Central notice of abandonment has caused a renewed flurry of activity.

In recent weeks Ulster's Industrial Development Agency and Gordon have been working together to organize development of the track into a tourist steam railway which would serve as a drawing card to get much-needed tourists into the county.

One of the new ideas to come out of that combined effort, says Gordon, is the possibility of setting up a Conrail technical training school for maintenance workers along the right of way. Work done by the Conrail students would work to gradually rehabilitate the line.

But this and other idea development "can no longer be left entirely to volunteer services," says Gordon, who strongly suggests a professional, "well-versed in transportation and business organization" be hired immediately.

Other ideas which need "exploration in depth and feasibility research" include the creation of an Ulster and Delaware Railroad historical society for the establishment of a Catskill Mountain Railroad Museum; Restoration of federal subsidies for deficit train operations during the early years of any steam line run.

The planners have 120 days from the March 1 notice of abandonment date before the state agencies involved must make a determination on the use of the line.

'Something Has Been Done Backwards Here' Is Woodstock Lament

Site Plans Go Back to the Drawing Board

WOODSTOCK -- It's back to the drawing board for Woodstock's Site Plan Review Proposal, the new zoning plan on which the local Planning Board has been working for more than a year.

Sentiment at the reconvened public hearing this week on site plans ran almost 100 per cent against the proposal. Opponents were not mollified by planning chairman Paul Van Wagenen's assurance that "all the vagueness" had been eliminated. The proposal, he said, no longer contained the nebulous language for which it was criticized previously. Gone were such phrases as "aesthetic value, harmonious whole, designs that enhance."

But opponents, mostly local businessmen, continued to argue the zoning changes, placing added restrictions on commercial construction, were still "very general, arbitrary and capricious." The restrictions relate to parking, screening, signs, landscaping, architecture, impact on adjacent land, and other matters.

Led by Albert Grossman, rock music promoter and Bearsville Records entrepreneur, many objected anew to town board approval of site plans because of the "broad powers" it would give the planning board.

As arguments dragged on toward midnight, a weary Van Wagenen said planners would "go back, draw up guidelines, and present them at a future time."

Grossman, former manager of superstars Bob Dylan, Joan Baez, Janis Joplin and others, is Bearsville's largest land owner. His remarks at the hearing drew repeated applause from youthful music enthusiasts and older shopkeepers and contractors alike.

"Something has been done backwards here," he said. "The review plan says give us this power and then we will give you guidelines. It leaves no room for anyone to appeal except on basic constitutional grounds. The need for absolute rights for the person applying must not be left solely to the planning board."

Grossman saw a "need to build into these guidelines some closer kinds of communication, and reduce the administrative delays." He recommended site plan approval by the town on an "advisory basis" to "allow evaluation and input from the community." Added Grossman, "The desires and needs of the community are very, very important. They transcend partisan politics and are our own personal visions of the future."

He voiced his own concern with the impact of business on Woodstock, and said some businesses had made wrong decisions that had worsened sewage and traffic problems. But he said site review, as now proposed, would "vici-timize" only one group—the businessmen.

Grossman wasn't entirely against the proposal, he said. "There should be orderly development in the community," he noted, "but it's not all that simplistic, and it's not the sole property of planning geniuses."

Insisted Grossman, "There are no guidelines now. Let's work on it and maybe we can come up with something the planners and lawyers haven't thought of...maybe even something better. We just don't need more laws to enforce."

Former town justice candidate Sam Shirah agreed. "You're judging the public guilty beforehand by setting up an arbitrary power in the site plan review board before the law has been passed or tested," he said. "We should not have to ask permission to exercise our basic rights."

COPE coordinator Sean O'Brien called for "a statement of intent" and the removal of "legalese" from the proposal. "Let's not rush into a hasty thing that's arbitrary, even though we do need it," he said. "It's a wide open amendment as it stands, and it's premature to enact site plan review before knowing everything about the state's new Environmental Quality Act."

Only long-time resident and planner John Bonilla questioned Grossman's persuasiveness and civic-minded neighborliness. Grossman had insisted he had not purchased his Bearsville property "for commercial purposes," but as a gesture to forestall a boarding house.

That moved Bonilla to comment, "Grossman has built two restaurants, a theatre, and a recording studio, and no one has had review authority over those buildings." Such review would have been "beneficial," he thought, inasmuch as Grossman's traffic entrance and exit planning hadn't proved to be all that good.
